The Magnetic Eye

LENGTH 305 FEET.

An extraordinary looking man is awakened in the morning by a trained mosquito. He is possessed of unusual magnetic powers. One glance of his eye is sufficient to remove or attract any object or individual. In dressing, his clothes fly through the air to his person. On the streets an automobile, carriage or push cart accidentally getting in his way is removed by a glance of his eye. Meeting a charming young lady with her grandfather—she becomes a victim of his magnetic eye—while the old man is forced to beat a hasty retreat.

Some amusing incidents happen to the couple in their strolls around town. But grandpa and the little brother are on his track—and the mischievous boy armed with a putty blower meets his sister in company with the magnetic individual and hits him in the eye. This makes him lose his power and the boy and old man wipe the sidewalk with him. A policeman takes him in charge and the girl rejoins grandpa and brother.

The Greed for Gold

LENGTH, 900 FEET.

A young Greek leaves his native land for America. Fortune smiles upon him and after ten years of thrift and hard work he returns to the land of his birth.

Arriving in Greece he is met by his sweetheart who accompanies him to the door of his old home. He counsels her not to come in until the next morning as he wishes to surprise his parents.

The parents fail to recognize him. He decides to keep them in suspense until the morning and give a keen edge to the delight which will be theirs upon disclosing his identity.

The old couple sit in amazement as he describes the wonders of the new world and shows them the money he saved.

Having finished his story he retires to the old attic, his boyhood palace. He is sleeping peacefully when the greed of gold drives the old man to commit a crime. He drives a dagger into the breast of the sleeping unknown. The mother pounces upon the money and both descend to the room below counting their ill-gotten fortune.

With the early morning sun the son's sweetheart dashes in. She asks where the young man is. They answer he did not stay long but left early in the morning. Unable to keep the good news she tells them that the young man is their son.

Frantic with grief the parents run up stairs thinking they might be able to save the life of their son. But too late. The mother drops dead and the father, a raving maniac rushes wildly to a suicide's death.
